Marine Engineering.

CAREER: Marine Engineer

Kevin, 21, is a dedicated and ambitious student at Jomo Kenyatta University of Agriculture and Technology (JKUAT), where he is pursuing a Bachelor of Science degree in Marine Engineering. Driven by a deep passion for Science and Mathematics, Kevin dreams of becoming a Marine Engineer one day—an aspiration that reflects both his curiosity and his determination to make a meaningful impact in the world.

Kevin is the second-born in a family of four children—three boys and one girl. Following the passing of their father, Kevin and his siblings were raised solely by their mother. The family lives in a modest double-room house equipped with electricity but lacking running water.

Kevin's mother works as a housekeeper at a local school, earning just enough to sustain the household. Before the COVID-19 pandemic, she worked as a banker, but the disruption caused by the pandemic led to the loss of her job, plunging the family into financial hardship.

These challenges profoundly affected Kevin's educational journey. His elder brother completed high school but was unable to proceed to college due to financial constraints. For Kevin, hope was restored when SAAS identified his potential and stepped in to sponsor his education, enabling him to not only complete high school but also secure a place at the university.

Kevin continues to dedicate himself fully to his studies, motivated by the desire to transform his life and uplift his family. His love for Science and Mathematics aligns seamlessly with his academic path, and in his free time, he enjoys playing football and nurturing his talent for poetry.

Kevin's journey is a powerful testament to resilience, opportunity, and the life-changing impact of support. With unwavering focus and determination, he is steadily working toward achieving his dreams and building a brighter future for himself and his family.
